Such a project was started from the thought that if the mental and physical health of every child is in a proper way, it will help in the children's learning and extracurricular activities.

All the teachers and PTA members of the school came forward to devise the necessary activities for this project. The activities were devised keeping in mind the school environment and the home environment of each child

In the health club meeting held in the month of June, it was decided to check the nails of the students every Monday under the leadership of the club members to ensure the personal hygiene of the children and its activities started in the month of June itself. It was decided that the classrooms would be cleaned every Friday.

During this month, attention was paid to the activities of giving more importance to environmental cleanliness. As the rain got stronger, the monsoon diseases got stronger. Teacher said that the school and its surroundings should be cleaned to some extent to protect from monsoon diseases and Dry Day should be observed once a week at home and school. Teacher exhorted the children in the assembly. In connection with that, the children observed Dry Day in the school premises.

A motivational class for parents was organized in the school in the month of July under the leadership of the club aiming at social and mental health of children. A very good class was organized in the school by Mr. Mohandas Mash, winner of the State National Award for Best Teacher.

He highlighted the characteristics of the current students and their emotional levels and explained how to engage them. Sir pointed out that today's parents do not have the heart to listen to their children's problems and parents are unable to keep up with their children in their busy lives.

The activities of the month of August were completely based on the personal situation of all the students in the school. Teachers provide opportunities to identify emotional problems in children and engage them with necessary solutions. For that, each child was met and talked to personally. Teachers strive to reach out to the child, become their best friend and ask their problems.

Moreover, the teachers were able to visit each child's home and understand their home environment, thereby getting closer to the child. This has helped in getting to know the children who are lagging behind in studies and other extra-curricular activities. Such activities also help such children to become a helping hand in all areas.

The Headmistress also gave a lot of support to this program which makes the emotional health of the children more efficie
